Robert and Barbara Cuccharella of 66 Breseter Road are parents of a first-born, daughter Tiffany, born June 27. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Cuccharella and Mr. and Mrs. Mario Accardi, and live in New York.

Jacqueline Plante, 12, of Cohasset received a $100 savings bond for her success while participating in the 1979 "Ride-a-Bike for Mentally Retarded People" on April 29.

Jacqueline, who collected $1,242.25 in the Cohasset Ride, was the top money earner in the age 16 and under category of all participants in the 85 rides around the state. Over 25,000 people rode on April 29 in the eighth annual fundraiser for the Massachusetts Association for Retarded Citizens (MARC).

Deborah Lamb and Patrick Plante, coordinators of the Cohasset Ride, were delighted that one of their riders had won. Ms. Lamb and Mr. Plante were among the 85 coordinators most of whom are members of the Massachusetts Teachers Association and who were honored at the banquet.

Since the Ride-a-Bike began in 1972, over $1,500,000 has been raised through the efforts of the Massachusetts Teachers Association, which organizes students and others in many local rides and contributes funds to local communities.

Brian and John Keane of Cohasset are among 13 South Shore men and women who have been accepted to the Harvard-Radcliffe Class of 1983. They and other area freshmen were recently honored at the spring dinner of the Old Colony Harvard Club.

Eleven year-old Robert Corkery of Hillside Drive received a special certificate from the American Automobile Association. Robert, a fifth grade student at the Deer Hill School, was one of 1000 Massachusetts students who participated in the AAA's 35th Annual National School Traffic Safety Poster contest. His art teacher at the Deer Hill is Jean O'Malley.

Robert Mullin of Cohasset, president of the Plymouth County Multiple Listing Service, reported last week that MLS sales broke new records for the first six months of 1979, reflecting an increase of 38 percent in the number of properties sold compared to the first six months of last year. Projections, he said, show that people realize real estate is among the soundest investments and that the South Shore is being recognized as a growth area for metropolitan Boston.

Ooops! Couple of weeks ago, one of our funny staff writers called Sandy Beach "Rocky Beach" in a front page picture caption. Since we couldn't plead typographical error, we asked him to see how many rocks he could find on the beach. He couldn't find many.

Marianne White and the Rev. Edward Atkinson recently returned from East Lansing, Mich., where they were delegates to the 18th annual General Assembly of the Unitarian Universalist Association held on the campus of Michigan State University. Among the speakers to the convention were the Rev. Jesse Jackson, president of Operation Push and the Rev. Daniel Berrigan, a well-known peace and civil rights activist. At the convention, delegates helped set denominational policy for the coming year.

According to our business editor, an industrious Cohasset teenager could make some good summer money by selling sea worms and other marine bait to fishermen leaving the Harbor.

Rotary Rates Bow

The month of July is traditionally a time of transition where the new Rotary Club officers are installed and the past year's accomplishments are reviewed. This year Cohasset Rotary Club has something to be proud of.

Cohasset Rotary ranked second in monies donated to the community. The leading club, Hyannis, with contributions of $6,025 has 124 members, while Cohasset with 24 members contributed $5,500. That's quite an accomplishment.

Guest speaker recently was Dave Gaffey from the Scituate Rotary Club. Gaffey spoke on bureaucracy in government. A funeral director from Scituate, he was most interested in the increasing government involvement in the funeral business. He feels the government wishes to somewhat regulate or oversee the funeral business which in turn may cause an increase in the cost of burial.

Club members with 100 percent attendance during the past year were Arthur Clark, Jim Kearney, Peter Logan, Ed Mulvey, Warren Pratt, Bill Ripley, Al Livingston and Fred

Howe. Missing were Fred Johansen, who is on vacation, Lloyd Prescott and Ed Goff.

Visiting rotarians were Henry Adams from Marshfield, Nate Whitten from Hawaii, Dave Gaffey from Scituate and Ted Vitty from Brockton. Another visitor was a former rotarian, Bob Fessler.

Monday, July 9 is club installation of officers and ladies night. A delicious buffet is planned, highlighted by a special dessert, compliments of our new president.
